NOTE.

The medals and plaquettes are for the most part cast, and in bronze. An endeavour has been made to note all cases in which they are struck and in any other metal, but it cannot be guaranteed that this has been done in every instance. The abbreviation "P." indicates that the specimen has been pierced for suspension; this fact has, as a rule, been noted in the case of all but inferior specimens, in accordance with the usual custom, although it very rarely affects the artistic value of the piece. References have, so far as possible, been given throughout to the literature of the subject, and to important sales (such as Lanna and Löbbecke), in order to save full descriptions. Where no references to literature are given, the types are probably hitherto undescribed. The references to the Burlington Magazine and the Burlington Fine Arts Club Catalogues are in nearly all cases to publications of the actual specimens in this collection. The illustrations, when nothing is said to the contrary, are of the size of the originals.

THE ROSENHEIM COLLECTIONS.

IT is but seldom in the present day that an auction room is found to contain so varied an assortment of objects of human interest as is to be seen in the collections of the brothers Max and Maurice Rosenheim. In their variety they recall the sales of the middle of the last century, of which the Debruge collection was a classical example. This is the more noteworthy, inasmuch as the Rosenheims possessed neither the early training nor any tradition that would naturally lead to such activities in their leisure hours. They were both continuously engaged in commercial affairs, with but little time to give to their collections, and yet they succeeded in gathering together in their unpretending home at Hampstead a great assemblage of Works of Art, Drawings, Engravings for Goldsmiths, minor Sculpture, including Renaissance bronzes, ivory and wood carvings, Astronomical Instruments, of Ceramics, of Silver Plate and Jewellery, and, not least, an important cabinet of Italian and German Medals of the Renaissance, and there is, in addition, a Library of curious early printing, as well as a number of Luther Tracts, and a comprehensive collection of "Ex Libris" (Bookplates). An uncommon feature of the library is a series of volumes of the kind called "Album Amicorum." In these the owner of the album invites his friends to set down their names, and generally an allusive aphorism, on a page of the volume, of which the principal feature is often the illuminated coat-of-arms of the friend who signs. The fashion of carrying these volumes had a great vogue in the Continental Universities in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and it is easy to believe that there was some competition among the possessors of them to obtain the signatures of the great scholars of their circle. Mr. Max Rosenheim published in Archaeologia a very full account of the practice, and described both his own albums and those elsewhere.

In nearly all the fields covered by these collections the Rosenheims possessed minute knowledge, and were consulted by the authorities both in England and abroad. Their house at Hampstead was, in fact, the centre of a group of art lovers and connoisseurs who could always rely on a warm welcome, and on the probability that a visit would lead to an increase of knowledge.

The conditions under which all these activities were pursued by the two brothers have an almost idyllic aspect, as their more intimate friends realize very well. That collections so formed should be dispersed, is in some ways a melancholy ending, but there are other points of view—they may well find resting places in hands equally sympathetic.

Where not otherwise described, the plaquettes are cast in bronze. In the dimensions of oval or angular pieces, the height is given first, the breadth second. It should be observed that such dimensions are but a pis aller as an indication of authenticity, since the borders of plaquettes are so variable. Also that in the case of the later plaquettes the dating and the distinction between Schools, such as German and Netherlandish, and even German and Italian, is often perforce highly conjectural.

THE ROSENHEIM COLLECTIONS.

IT is but seldom in the present day that an auction room is found to contain so varied an assortment of objects of human interest as is to be seen in the collections of the brothers Max and Maurice Rosenheim. In their variety they recall the sales of the middle of the last century, of which the Debruge collection was a classical example. This is the more noteworthy, inasmuch as the Rosenheims possessed neither the early training nor any tradition that would naturally lead to such activities in their leisure hours. They were both continuously engaged in commercial affairs, with but little time to give to their collections, and yet they succeeded in gathering together in their unpretending home at Hampstead a great assemblage of Works of Art, Drawings, Engravings for Goldsmiths, minor Sculpture, including Renaissance bronzes, ivory and wood carvings, Astronomical Instruments, of Ceramics, of Silver Plate and Jewellery, and, not least, an important cabinet of Italian and German Medals of the Renaissance, and there is, in addition, a Library of curious early printing, as well as a number of Luther Tracts, and a comprehensive collection of "Ex Libris" (Bookplates). An uncommon feature of the library is a series of volumes of the kind called "Album Amicorum." In these the owner of the album invites his friends to set down their names, and generally an allusive aphorism, on a page of the volume, of which the principal feature is often the illuminated coat-of-arms of the friend who signs. The fashion of carrying these volumes had a great vogue in the Continental Universities in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and it is easy to believe that there was some competition among the possessors of them to obtain the signatures of the great scholars of their circle. Mr. Max Rosenheim published in Archaeologia a very full account of the practice, and described both his own albums and those elsewhere.

In nearly all the fields covered by these collections the Rosenheims possessed minute knowledge, and were consulted by the authorities both in England and abroad. Their house at Hampstead was, in fact, the centre of a group of art lovers and connoisseurs who could always rely on a warm welcome, and on the probability that a visit would lead to an increase of knowledge.

The conditions under which all these activities were pursued by the two brothers have an almost idyllic aspect, as their more intimate friends realize very well. That collections so formed should be dispersed, is in some ways a melancholy ending, but there are other points of view—they may well find resting places in hands equally sympathetic.

NOTE.

The medals and plaquettes are for the most part cast, and in bronze. An endeavour has been made to note all cases in which they are struck and in any other metal, but it cannot be guaranteed that this has been done in every instance. The abbreviation "P." indicates that the specimen has been pierced for suspension; this fact has, as a rule, been noted in the case of all but inferior specimens, in accordance with the usual custom, although it very rarely affects the artistic value of the piece. References have, so far as possible, been given throughout to the literature of the subject, and to important sales (such as Lanna and Löbbecke), in order to save full descriptions. Where no references to literature are given, the types are probably hitherto undescribed. The references to the Burlington Magazine and the Burlington Fine Arts Club Catalogues are in nearly all cases to publications of the actual specimens in this collection. The illustrations, when nothing is said to the contrary, are of the size of the originals.

PLAQUETTES.

B. = Berlin Museum, Bode, Die Italienischen Bronzen, second edition, 1904.

B.F.A.C. = Burlington Fine Arts Club: 1906, Early German Art (Plaquettes, pp. 126-131); 1912, Italian Sculpture, etc. (Plaquettes, pp. 118-135).

M. = Molinier, Les Plaquettes, 1886.

V. = Berlin Museum, Vöge, Die deutschen Bildwerke, 1910.

Where not otherwise described, the plaquettes are cast in bronze. In the dimensions of oval or angular pieces, the height is given first, the breadth second. It should be observed that such dimensions are but a pis aller as an indication of authenticity, since the borders of plaquettes are so variable. Also that in the case of the later plaquettes the dating and the distinction between Schools, such as German and Netherlandish, and even German and Italian, is often perforce highly conjectural.
